About the Event

This June marks the 50th year of the Israeli military occupation. Israel's punitive measures continue seriously unabated, affecting every aspect of Palestinian life, especially that of Palestinian women who endure the direct and indirect impacts.

This event will bring together Palestinian human rights advocates who will highlight the daily encounters of the lives of Palestinian women under the Israeli military occupation. They will present evidence-based data on how the different dimensions of this Occupation impact women and have an interactive dialogue with the audience on those issues.

Come and attend the event to hear Palestinian women experts analyse how occupational violence is intertwined with gender based violence within the family and society.
